WEEQUAHIC HIGH SCHOOL

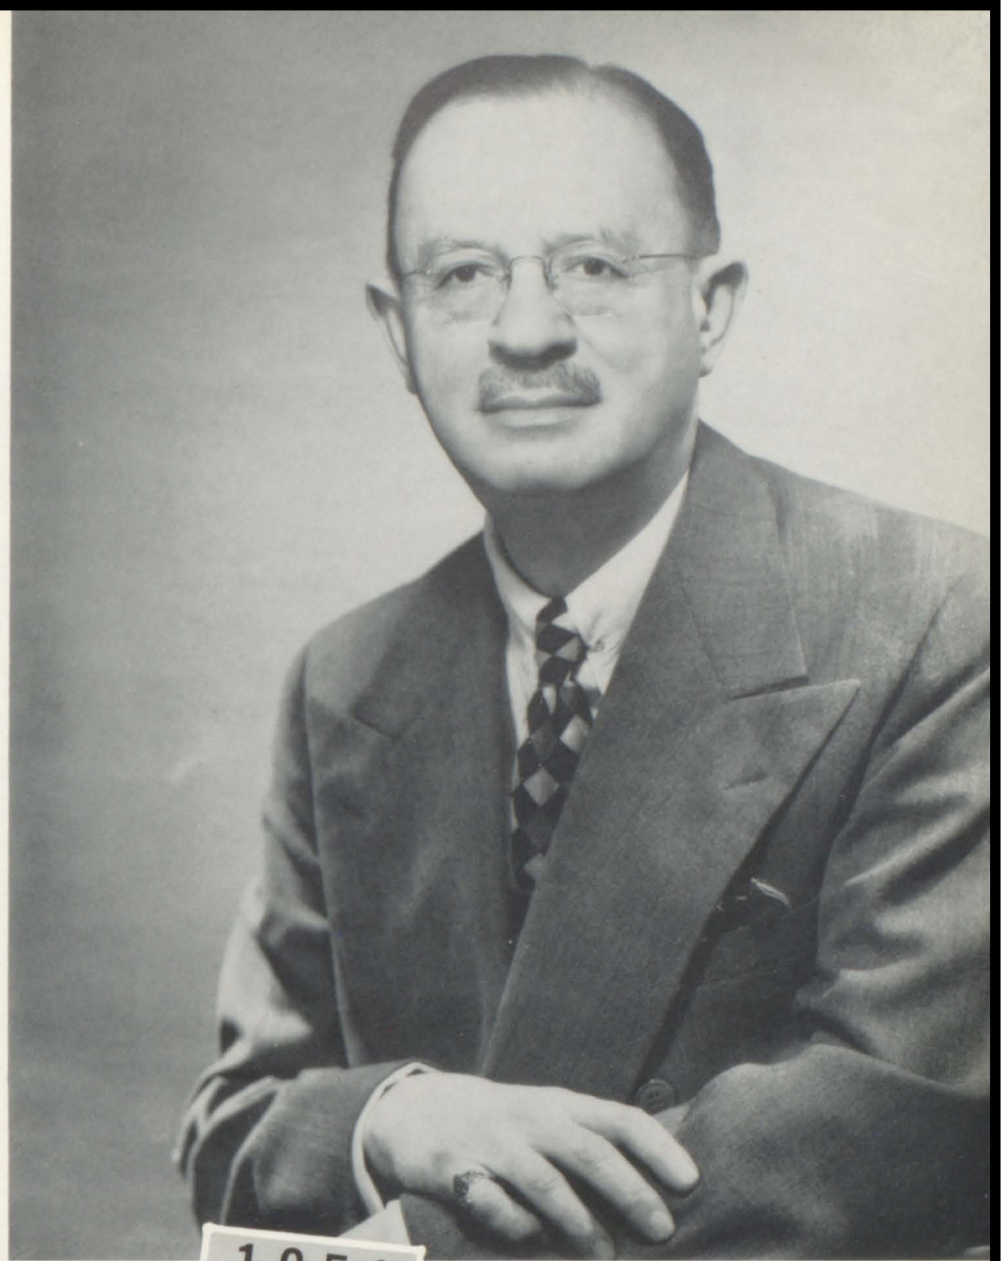

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY

JUNE 1951

We bid Aloha Oe to Four years—a span of time so brief and yet so full of precious memories. It is difficult to express what is in our hearts, for the time of farewell is perhaps one of the most poignant moments in all our lives. It is our hope that in this Legend we may look back and see ourselves as a part of the eternal legend that is Weequahic. And so—Aloha Oe—.

Max J. Herzberg
Principal

To the Class of June

1951

In this, my final message as principal of Weequahic High School, I wish to express my deep gratitude for a wonderful opportunity—the opportunity of being able to do something over the last 18 years for so many thousands of alert, intelligent, and ambitious young people at Weequahic. I can say sincerely that an overwhelming majority of Weequahic students deserve the three adjectives I have used. I'll miss you all. I wish the best of success and happiness to all my friends at Weequahic—and particularly to the Class of June 1951. I reckoned out the other day that I have gone to school, in various places, about 9000 times. I hope you all enjoyed your 720 or so days at Weequahic.

DEDICATION

This is The Legend of a man who dedicated his life to the greatest of professions, the molding of the character of youth.

Eighteen years ago, when Weequahic High School was opened for enrollment, it was a hollow building—without life, without tradition, and with an undetermined future. It had to make its place in the life of its community and the educational world. Our principal, Mr. Max J. Herzberg, was given this task, in itself an acknowledgment of his ability and standing.

Today, we have a school rich in tradition which enjoys the highest standing in educational circles. Through our principal's writings, our school has become known and respected throughout the United States.

If we are proud of our school and its reputation for learning which will precede us to our next field of endeavor, we can all thank the work and devotion which Mr. Herzberg has shown in our behalf. He has, in the past eighteen years, built a colossus to which he must now say farewell.

We, the graduating class of June 1951, therefore, humbly and gratefully dedicate our yearbook, The Legend . . .

. . . to Mr. Max J. Herzberg
Our Principal

MAX J. HERZBERG

A prominent New Jersey judge, in speaking of Max J. Herzberg, told of a bridge party which they both attended.

"After playing a crackerjack game, he sat down to supper and talked to me at great length and with astonishing accuracy of the problem of liability, especially in schools. Then he turned to the person on the other side of him and spoke with equal length and proficiency on migraine headaches, endocrine glands, and the human mind. Later, he related several well-told funny stories that were worth remembering. I had to keep reminding myself that he is an English teacher, but how he knows so much about so many things absolutely beats me."

Many people have wondered for many years how Max J. Herzberg learned so much. The answer is simple. He has been at it for sixty-five years.

Born in the big city of New York and reared near the Brooklyn shorefront, he grew into a studious child. He and his younger brother, Gus, got along very well together, although they were temperamentally entirely different types. His home life was happy, for his mother was completely devoted to her family and home, while his father, a hatter, was an excellent amateur historian.

The family moved to Newark and young Max was graduated from what is now Barringer High School. It was at this time that he was told by an oculist that he was going to lose his sight. Other specialists, however, contradicted that judgment, and though he has had eye trouble all his life, he didn't go blind.

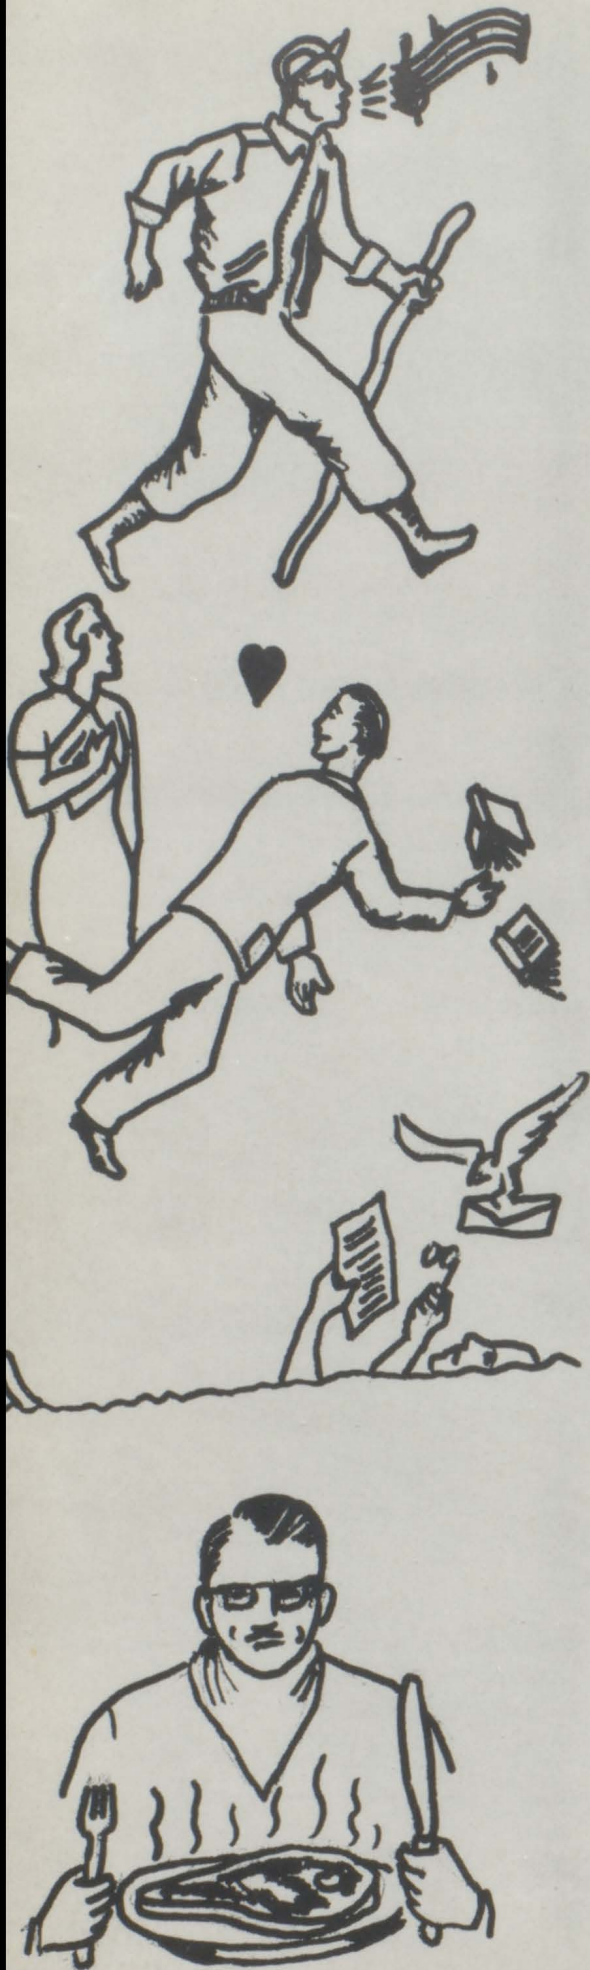

He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Columbia University in three and a half years, even though during those years he took on many odd jobs, such as tutoring and factory work.

Because of his sharp sense of humor, his fun-loving acquaintances became his close friends, and it was through a group of these friends that he met charming Edna Newman, whom, after a year's friendship, he married. Shortly afterward, Mr. Herzberg started teaching in the Newark high schools, and he zoomed to a prominent place in the Newark school system. Highly regarded from the beginning as a teacher of both English and German, Mr. Herzberg was transferred to become head of the English department at Central High School, when it was opened, and eventually he became supervisor of English in the public schools of Newark. He has also been an instructor at New York University, Rutgers, and other nearby colleges.

One day in the summer of 1933, while he was at the shore, he was informed that he was to be the first principal of Weequahic High School.

Setting as a goal an orderly and academically sound school, he has managed to bring Weequahic up to the level of that high standard, and as a result the school is today generally considered as one of the best co-ordinated and best run in the entire state. Just as the man in charge is saddled with the responsibility for failure, so must Mr. Herzberg be given credit for the many accomplishments achieved under his guidance and administration.

Persuasive and even-tempered, Mr. Herzberg believes that teaching should be practiced through laughter. In fact, he is the co-editor of the only high school text book made up entirely of humorous writings. He has also edited an excellent book of humorous anecdotes which is today a collector's item.

- A PROFILE

He started writing at an early age, and after piling up a fine collection of rejection slips, he finally had his first poem accepted. He has written continuously and prolifically since, and now can be found any day after school working at the Newark Evening News as literary editor. He has done broadcasting for CBS as educational advisor to the American School of the Air, and he is the author of most of the inscriptions on the tablets erected as markers for local historical sites by the Schoolmen's Club of Newark. Mr. Herzberg has sat in on more than one hundred committees and has written and edited almost everything but the Bible and word has it that he will be doing that soon. In fact, it is said of him that when he sees a textbook that he does not like, he writes his own.

Although his career has kept him busy, he has still found time for many home and general interests. He is an accomplished bridge player but does not like canasta, a fact which bothers Mrs. Herzberg. His wide scope of interests coupled with a phenomenal memory enable him to enjoy life fully. Seeming to have time for everything, Mr. Herzberg makes friends completely and firmly.

He has a deep streak of sentimentality and loves to celebrate any kind of an anniversary, sometimes surprising his wife with a gift in remembrance of such occasions as the anniversary of the first time they met or of their first date. Mr. Herzberg has always been interested in sports, and, avid reader that he is, he can talk about most of them with some authority. He is especially fond of boxing and had his two sons trained by a professional. Several years back, he sponsored and furnished a prize for a boxing tournament at Weequahic High School. The sport he loves to indulge in most is walking, and often he will get off the bus long before his stop and complete his journey on foot. He takes frequent long morning walks in the South Mountain Reservation.

Though he rarely has time to watch television, he enjoys most of what he sees, including boxing and wrestling; this last sport appeals especially to his sense of humor. Like most men, Mr. Herzberg enjoys good eating and prefers steaks above all, but he is also something of a connoisseur of fine and unusual cheeses.

He considers his domestic life to have been particularly fortunate and happy. He is the fond and proud father of two grown sons. Donald, his younger son, holds a very important position as secretary to Senator Benton of Connecticut while his other son, Dick, who is an executive in the Prudential Insurance Company, is the father of two adorable daughters whom their very proud grandpa loves dearly.

On the day that Weequahic opened, back in 1933, Mr. Herzberg addressed the student body and told them that he hoped to develop a school that would be distinguished for a high sense of orderly responsibility and superior scholarship. Recently, he was reminded of this and complimented on having had these two wishes granted.

"If I had known," he said, "that such wishes could come true, I would have added a third one—for a winning football team."

Those who have known him will agree that no sketch of this kind can fully do justice to him. All that can be left in this book is the picture of a man whose influence over eighteen years has molded a superior high school.

He is graduating with the class of June, 1951, and as one classmate to another, we wish him the best of luck!

Aloha, Mr. Herzberg!

Dear Mr. Herzberg:

It is with deepest regret that I contemplate your retirement from active service in the Newark school system as of June 30, 1951. Professionally and personally, I am loath to see this event occur because I have always realized your sterling worth both as a teacher and as a principal. We have been particularly proud of you because you are a product of the Newark schools. Furthermore, you elected to follow a career as teacher of English in which you very early established a high reputation. That reputation today is nation-wide. You have been an indefatigable worker and a teacher vitally interested in making English attractive for students, as evidenced by the many textbooks which you have written and prepared over the years.

When you were advanced to the principalship of Weequahic High School, you were given the opportunity to demonstrate your latent administrative ability on both students and faculty. The superior rating received by Weequahic High School in its evaluation of last spring by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is objective evidence of the strong leadership which you have exerted within the school and the community over the past years.

Fortunately for you when you retire, you will still be active in newspaper work, particularly in the field of book reviewing where you have made an equally enviable reputation.

May God be good to you and give you many years of activity and good health as you relinquish the reins over one phase of a busy and useful life.

Sincerely yours

Newark 8, New Jersey

Dear Mr. Herzberg:

It is with pleasure that I, as President of the Board of Education, send to you on the occasion of your retirement my official greetings and acknowledgment of your distinguished record of service in the Newark schools. Your accomplishments as an educator have been such as to bring justified pride to both yourself and your family and to inspire other teachers and principals. Long before you became principal of Weequahic High School, you had established a reputation as an outstanding teacher of English at Harringer and Central High Schools. The students whose lives you have molded have been highest in praise of your influence upon them and upon their careers.

As principal of Weequahic High School, you have given leadership which has made the school one of the outstanding institutions of its kind in the United States. The school's high standing can be observed as easily in the upkeep and appearance of the school building itself, as in the record of accomplishment of its students and graduates.

Permit me to extend to you, on behalf of all the members of the Board of Education, our best wishes and to express to you our deepest appreciation for your professional service to Newark and its youth over the years.

May God give you many years of happiness and good health in the leisure you have earned.

Sincerely yours

As Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Charge of the Secondary Division, I have been in the position to observe the exceptionally outstanding and professional contributions made by Mr. Max J. Herzberg to secondary education and to the teaching of English not only on the local level but on the State and National level. I am, therefore, privileged to add my congratulations to the numerous other congratulations that he will receive in appreciation of his many years of professional achievement, and especially as a token of appreciation of his magnificent service as principal of Weequahic High School.

We congratulate Mr. Herzberg further upon the expectation that he will continue to maintain his interest in education and his fine service to his fellowman.

Perhaps the greatest tribute which can be paid to Max. J. Herzberg upon his retirement is to recognize the many accomplishments of his former students.

Compounded into virtually every segment of the American scene, these former students are now making valuable contributions to the preservation of our democratic institutions.

Wisdom and vigor are the basic implements required in any fight to reject all forms of totalitarianism. The former students of Max J. Herzberg enter this present-day fight well-equipped with these tools -- tools which were forged and sharpened under the direction of Max J. Herzberg.

His influence upon students has been considerable. Their many achievements are the true testimonials which acclaim Max J. Herzberg as one of the foremost educators ever to serve the citizens of Newark.

Dear Dr. Herzberg:

Your many friends throughout the country, I am sure, join me in sending warmest greetings and heartiest congratulations upon the eve of your retirement from the principalship of the Weequahic High School.

As a teacher, administrator, editor and author, you are sure to have friends beyond number among pupils, parents, and teachers who will miss your good judgment and other fine administrative qualities; but I imagine that those who have come to know your good humor, ready understanding, and warm sympathy will always miss you most keenly.

May your purpose ever be

"To sail beyond the sunset, and

Of all the western stars;"

and may new fields of service, new satisfactions, and new friends continue to fill your life with happiness!

Cordially,

IRVING J. GOLDBERG

OUR GRADE ADVISER

Very seldom does such a relationship exist between a teacher and his pupils as has existed between Mr. Goldberg and our class. To most of us he is an adviser and a teacher, but to all of us he is a friend, a very close and dear friend. We love his dimpled smile, his friendly generosity, and of course his inevitable quotations. But the thousands of words in the English language are far too inadequate to express the depth of our feelings toward him.

All of us, at one time or another, have had schedule troubles. Mr. "G." has always been ready and willing to straighten them out. Our problems have been his problems, and none was too large or too small to merit his closest attention.

And now, in our humble way, we the class of June 1951, wish to give our heartfelt thanks and pay public tribute to the man who has guided us through our long but happy years at Weequahic.

Joseph Dean

212 Weequahic Avenue

"Nothing succeeds like success."
—From the French

Joseph left Weequahic in September 1946 to serve in the armed forces of our country. Since he has completed his courses in the United States Armed Forces Institute, he is receiving his diploma as a member of the class of June, 1951.

Bernard Swerdlow

298 Leslie Street

"Every man has his fault, and honesty is his."
—Shakespeare

A student of Weequahic until May, 1949, Bernard completed his studies at Central Evening High and is being awarded his diploma as a member of our June, 1951 class.

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF JUNE 1951

1947

There we were, gripping our new zipper notebooks and biting our fingernails as we marched determinedly up the steps of the Annex or Madison, as the case was. - - - We were Freshman!! The year that followed held our first memories of high school - - - Algebra equations - - - beginning language conjugations - - - our first introduction to Miss O'Connor and her signs - - - the struggles of J.B.T. - - - the Rams and Bobcats making names for themselves in our sporting world - - - the Thespian ambitions of "James Madison Speaks" - - - and our musical effort, "Martha."

1948

The main building at last! The dream of all up and coming 1A's was finally realized, and we had arrived at the station of Sophomores, the lowliest of all creatures, the object of disdainful glares from high and mighty Seniors. Struggling through the usual barrage of elevator passes, swimming pool tickets, and directions to the fourth floor, we were marked by our orange direction books. But the strangeness of new faces in new homerooms soon wore off as we adopted our new grade adviser, Mr. Goldberg, and plunged into the complexities of Biology - - - the genders in German - - - the headaches of beginning typing - - - and then there we were, on the threshold of our Junior Year.

1949

Finally Juniors - - - Ah hopefulness!! With 3B came our first class officers - - - Liebman, Flint, Spiegel, and Gray, and a whirl of Physics - - - Economic Geography - - - Geometry. And then 3A was upon us, with Spiegel, Corwick, Gabriner, and Gray at the helm, and a busy 3A it was, what with the 3A-4B production of "The Admirable Crichton," led by Mrs. Van Beyer, and our long-to-be-remembered 3A Picnic, when Echo Lake resounded with the splash of oars and the cheers of enthusiastic students, spurring Miss O'Connor on to victory in the balloon races. And, as abruptly as it had come, this year was gone and we were approaching the culmination of our high school careers.

1950

We finally reached the exalted rank of Seniors!! Impossible as it seemed, there we were with the world at our feet and our seniority at our heads. Spiegel, Corwick, Barnhard, and Gray took the lead and we were off to a term memorable for Chem equations - - - Trig problems - - - Secretarial Practice - - - the solemnity of our first Torch Day - - - and our very successful 4B Hop. And, before we knew it, 4A, the climax of our four high school years, was upon us. The unity of spirit that had been gradually tying us together over the years became a strong bond, and with Spiegel, Goldstein, Barnhard, and Gray leading us, we experienced the excitement of 4A together. Parties - - - College Boards - - - class ratings - - - driving licenses - - - the nostalgia of our second Torch Day - - - our wonderful Prom - - - and finally Graduation - - - and we were at the termination of our four years at Weequahic - - - years of learning, genuine friendship, and happy memories.

PARODIES FOR AULD LANG SYNE

Of all the classes yet to be
In Weequahic High, I'd say
That ours, the class of '51,
Is best in every way.

And it was very evident
That Seymour was so gay,
When he became class president
And his treas'rer Sandy Gray.

When any wise-cracking is done
You can blame it on Pee Wee.
She's only half the size of one
But makes noise enough for three.

Ina is a little lass
Who can be surpassed by none.
She's voted by our senior class
As Miss Voice of '51.

Our harpist Jill is heavenly
When strumming on the strings.
We won't be at all surprised if she
Sprouts a halo and two wings.

She really does a fine ballet
Says everyone who's seen'er
She's on her toes in Class 3A
As Scribe Miss Joan Gabriner.

Robert Weiss is oh so merry
And really isn't thick.
If he were padded he'd look very Much like bright Saint Nick.

Whenever you've a problem sad
Go to Pinky in 123
To solve it she'll be oh so glad
Yes, Problems in geometry.

When e'er Miss Baker you may see,
She greets you with "yo' all."
We really like to know if she
Types with a southern drawl.

If teaching school's effectual
A product swell have we
The grandest intellectual
With the initial M. O'C.

Spanish, French, and also Latin,
She taught us how to speak
We should be thankful that Miss Patton
Never took up Greek.

We are the class of '51
And forever we shall be
So dear beyond all others
In our hearts and memory.

AS WE WERE

(KEY ON PAGE 115)

A black and white photograph of a large group of students, likely a yearbook class or a school organization, posing in front of a chalkboard. The students are arranged in several rows, with some sitting at desks in the foreground. Many of the students have their names handwritten in cursive over them. The names visible include: Miss Leffe, Marine, Ann, Bill, Jerry, Albert, Helen, Chris, John, Lisa, David, Mike, Kevin, Mary, and others. The students are dressed in mid-20th-century attire, including sweaters, blouses, shirts, and ties. The background is a plain chalkboard.

THE BEST SPORTS

As the student body returns to school after a long and pleasant summer, they find the harriers and football team already hard at work in preparation for their respective seasons. Among the milling groups of gridiron men, we find our classmates: Lee Pivnick, Marv Rubin, and Fred Giordano, the nucleus of our stalwart line. The three boys have been faithful in their services to the team for the four years of their high school careers. A necessary function of a well organized team is its managers. These duties have been capably fulfilled by Jerry Poznak, Hank Wolf, and Larry Dubin. Abe Sanders, the captain of the Cross-Country team, has been a valuable asset to it for the past three years.

As the weather becomes colder, our athletes move inside and look toward the basketball courts and swimming pools.

Our ever-dependable basketball team again has enjoyed a very successful season under the able guidance of Henry Donn. The team was led by play-makers Willie Pitts and Barry Flint. The set shooting of Abe Sanders and the hard driving lay-up shots of Hesh Kent and Red Goldwater sparked our famous fastbreak offense. The rebound power of 6'5" Richie Johnes has been a dominating factor under the backboards. Bob Spitzkopf, Herb Yefsky, and Norm Shoenfeld as managers were able aides to the coach.

Another team which has experienced a successful season is our swimming squad. Featured in the freestyle events were Lee Pivnick and Nick Karanasos. In the various other races we have backstroker Fred Mitterhoff and breast-stroker Al Abramson.

During the years when we had boxing tournaments, Monroe "K. O." Kurtz, Ben Epstein, Red Goldwater, Willie Pitts, and Natie Weiss were outstanding pugilists.

As the Weequahic athletes again look to the outdoors, we hear the rhythmic pounding on the cinders and the crack of the bat.

Our baseball team this season was led by moundsman Jerry Liebman. Scooping up the hot shots at third and firing them to first baseman Herb Yampolsky, was Red Goldwater. Dan Gaby covered the outfield, snaring fly balls.

The unsung heroes of our class athletic personalities have been the Weequahic trackmen. In the field events we have Mark Kurs putting the shot, and Abe Sanders clearing the high-jump bar. Our fleet-footed sprinter, Sandy Schneider, agile hurdler, Donny Legow, and long-legged half-miler, Barry Flint, led the way in the running events.

As the breaking of the tape signifies the end of a race, so does the end of the track season signify the termination of our high school athletic careers.

The teamwork and sportsmanship that we have acquired and developed through our athletic interests will remain with us for many years to come.

Not to be outdone by the boys, many girls also excel in the sporting world. Among those who have received their pins is Gladys Stein, an all-round athlete. Exhibiting expert terpsichorean talents are Fern Galane, Esther Sher, and Annabelle Weisman. Agile feet are a necessity in soccer as manifested by Wilma Dasche and Joyce Malkmus. Swiftmess of wrist and keenness of mind make experts at badminton of Essie Marks and Bobbi Sherman. Carol Disko's, Arlene Krushen's, and Kate Mitterando's foremost talents are in the field of basketball. For these special talents and for their day by day accumulation of meritorious gym credits, these girls have received their Weequahic W's, the symbol of ability, sportsmanship, and achievement.
